Newsletter – Friday 22nd March 2019

Happy Birthday to.....
Jack K. James Mc. & Isabella T.

Dear Parents and Guardians,

There has been some Super Science work going on this week in all the classes. It was great to see the children across the school on Wednesday sharing their science investigations...we even had the New Bees coming up too! It was also a great week for our Tag Rugby team...winning their match against Almeley 10-4. The team played really well and could only be matched in ability to the triumphant England Ladies Rugby team!

There is lots going on next week with rescheduled trips along with some other exciting things happening, such as the Great Hereford Spring clean event and of course the Mother's Day tea and cake afternoon. Please come along from 1.30 pm if you would like to help with the litter pick, you can take a small group of children out with you to help if you are willing.

Enjoy your weekends

Alex Davies

Science Week

The whole school has been busy with Science activities this week. Lots of different investigations have been carried out. We even had an afternoon where the Queen Bees & Worker Bees children ran some Science activities for the younger children in the school. Thank you to those children that brought experiments in from home to share with their class, there have been some fascinating activities. We also had some great entries for the 'Journeys' poster and paper aeroplane competitions. One winner per class has been announced today, for the paper aeroplane competition, the poster winner will be announced next week.

World Down Syndrome – Lots of Socks Day

We all had lots of fun yesterday supporting World Down Syndrome day and celebrating our differences by wearing odd and colourful socks to school!
